The Basics of Commercial & Personal Licensing

Personal Licensing (Free fonts)

You are able to use all fonts under this license for personal use (work where you are not paid for your services, and where there is no monetary gain for either party as a result of using the font). You are able to use these fonts to help promote your creative portfolios and I am happy for you to use them in design mock-ups for clients. If your client approves of a design where the font has been used, please purchase a commercial license for that font.

If you are a student, you are able to use all fonts under this license for school assignments and projects. As long as they remain within our agreement.

If you are a non-profit organization, to use my personal licensed fonts for non-profit organizations you would need to contact me prior to any use. I will review each case and deliver a verdict within 24 hours.

Commercial use of my fonts is prohibited under this license. You may not distribute this font to another party or device. The embedding of this font into either a website (web font), application or ePub document is also not allowed under the terms of this license.

The Basics of Commercial & Personal Licensing

Commercial Licensing (Paid for)

For a detailed description of my Commercial License please refer to the EULA.txt document that was included in your download. The write up that follows is very basic and covers the most popular uses.

You are able to use all fonts under this license for commercial purposes. This can include printed materials (posters, leaflets, newsletters, books, magazines, t-shirts, mugs, etc) and any imagery that will be used online.

You are able to distribute the font among a total of 2 devices (limited to one user). For more devices/users, you will be required to purchase a multi-user license. (refer to EULA section F1).

If you purchased a Desktop license, you are not permitted to use the font/s for web work (webfonts). To do so you must purchase the Webfont license. If you purchased the Webfont license only; no desktop use.

You are not able to embed my fonts into applications or ebooks with this license. (see EULA). No re-distribution/selling without written permission from myself.
